

The Lee County Airport Authority Names Jonathan Buff as New General Manager of FBO, Page Field

Jonathan Buff

FT. MYERS, FL – Following a nationwide search, the Lee County Airport Authority has announced that Jonathan Buff will become the new general manager of Base Operations, the FBO at Page Field. He will begin his new position on January 30, 2014.

The general manager of the airport owned FBO is a new position entitled Senior Manager, Flight Support. In that role, Buff will oversee all aspects of flight support operations including line service, customer service, fuel sales, customer retention, new business development, quality assurance, retail sales, safety and environmental compliance. Additionally, he will be responsible for financial management including budgeting, monitoring of expenditures and forecasting.

Buff has more than 15 years of experience in aviation including leadership experience at AMR Combs, Signature Flight Support, and Sheltair Aviation Services. In his most recent position, Buff served as the General Manager with Hawthorne Global Aviation Services in New Orleans, LA. He was called upon to direct daily operations for the company's first FBO location.

"Base Operations at Page Field is pleased to welcome Mr. Buff to our team," says Barry Bratton, A.A.E., Director of General Aviation with the Lee County Port Authority. "With his wealth of experience and industry knowledge, I am confident he will help us grow our business, while expanding customer service and safety programs."

Buff holds a BS in Administration of Justice from the American University in Washington, DC and obtained his Juris Doctorate from the Cleveland-Marshall College of Law in Cleveland, OH.

Buff says, "I am thrilled to be joining the highly respected team of aviation professionals at the Lee County Port Authority. Base Operations at Page Field is a world class operation and I am both proud and excited at the prospect of being able to contribute to its success in the future."
