

The Capital Region Airport Authority Announces New President and Chief Executive Officer

Wayne Sieloff, A.A.E., IAP

LANSING, MI – Following a nationwide search, the Capital Region Airport Authority has selected Wayne Sieloff, A.A.E., to be the new President and Chief Executive Officer at the Capital Region International Airport (LAN).

Sieloff, who began his new position on Dec. 5, succeeds Robert F. Selig, who retired in August after 14 years at the helm of CRAA.

"We're delighted to welcome someone of Wayne Sieloff's caliber to Lansing," said CRAA Chairman Chris Holman. "He has a clear vision for building on Capital Region International Airport's assets and ensuring it serves the Greater Lansing community to its fullest capabilities."

Sieloff served as vice president since 2012 for the Wayne County Airport Authority, which operates the Detroit Metro and Willow Run airports. In that position, he was part of the senior leadership team that identifies and develops strategic plans, business plans, annual operational goals and capital initiatives for the two airport campuses, which combined have more than 600 employees, 8,500 acres of land and operating budgets totaling over $300 million.

In his new job, Sieloff will oversee all operations of Capital Region International Airport (LAN), including the Port Lansing logistics and cargo services.

"I'm excited about joining the Capital Region International Airport family. These are amazing times for the Lansing area, and I look forward to building on the momentum that recent airport successes have created," said Sieloff. "My primary focus is going to be on building and strengthening relationships," he said. "I want LAN to always be the airport of choice within the region, and I aim to discover in my discussions with community members the ways we can better serve them and increase airport utilization."

Sieloff holds bachelors and master's degrees in architecture from Lawrence Technological University in Southfield. He is an Accredited Airport Executive (A.A.E.) and an International Airport Professional (IAP).

He worked in the private sector architectural industry until 1997, when he joined Wayne County as a project architect. He held increasingly responsible positions for Wayne County and its airport authority before joining Lansing.

Sieloff and his wife, Lori, have three children ages 11 through 17.

This search was conducted by ADK Executive Search, a retained executive search firm specializing exclusively in searches for the aviation community.
