

City of Naples Airport Authority Announces New Deputy Executive Director

NAPLES, FL – The City of Naples Airport Authority has named Diane Terrill the new Deputy Executive Director to assist in the development and implementation of the Authority’s strategic plans and policies. Ms. Terrill will also support the Executive Director in the direction, management, operations, facility maintenance and daily activities planning for the Naples Municipal Airport (APF). Located in Southwest Florida, APF was originally established as an Army Air Corps base. Today the airport is a fully operational first class general aviation airport and prime destination for businesses and vacationers alike.

“After undergoing a national recruiting process which attracted applicants from coast to coast, we were grateful to find the best candidate close to home,” shares Chris Rozansky, executive director of Naples Airport Authority. “Diane has the right combination of experience, concern for the community and passion for the vision of our organization that made her selection clear.”

Ms. Terrill most recently served as Senior Director of Strategy and Communication for Naples Airport Authority, overseeing the noise compatibility program, among other responsibilities. Since joining Naples Airport Authority in 2014, Ms. Terrill has served in leadership positions for numerous industry associations, including Florida Airports Council’s Noise Abatement & Community Affairs Committee. She brings more than 27 years of aviation management experience to the position. She began working for the Laconia Airport Authority in 1990 and was named Airport Manager in 1999. She served in that capacity until 2014.

“It is an honor and privilege to have been selected as the Deputy Executive Director at the Naples Airport. At APF, we believe in a ‘People First’ culture. It is centric to everything we do. I am very excited to work with the team in this new role and to build upon past great successes of the organization. An important role of the Deputy Executive Director is to ensure that the Naples Airport Authority is strategically poised to seize new opportunities and to meet the challenges of a dynamic industry in a responsive and collaborative manner. I look forward to the opportunity,” said Ms. Terrill.

Ms. Terrill is a Certified Member (C.M.) with the American Association of Airport Executives and is a Certified Project Management Professional (PMP). She also serves as Chair of the Florida Airports Council Noise and Community Affairs Committee.
