The Airport

Tampa International Airport is a public airport six miles west of Downtown Tampa in Hillsborough County, Florida. This Airport is publicly owned by Hillsborough County Aviation Authority, which also owns Peter O. Knight, Plant City and Tampa Executive Airports. It has been praised for its architecture and Landside/Airside design of a central terminal connected by people movers to satellite gates, a pioneering concept when designed in the late 1960s.

The Hillsborough County Aviation Authority was established by the 1945 Florida Legislature as an independent special district of the State of Florida with exclusive jurisdiction, control, supervision and management over all publicly owned airports in Hillsborough County.

The Aviation Authority is governed by a five-member Board of Directors. Three members are residents of Hillsborough County appointed by the Governor of the State of Florida for four-year terms. The Mayor of the City of Tampa and a board member of the County Commissioners of Hillsborough County serve ex officio on the board. The gubernatorial appointments occur at two-year intervals and at these times the Board reorganizes itself electing officers for the ensuing two years.

"The vision of the Authority is to be a vibrant aviation gateway for Tampa Bay, providing access and economic opportunity for our stakeholders."

Southwest Airlines carries the largest share of TPA passengers operating a peak-season schedule of over 90 daily departures. The airport presently serves more than 90 non-stop destinations, including international service to the Bahamas, Canada, Germany, Mexico, Netherlands, Panama, Switzerland, the United Kingdom, and destinations throughout the Caribbean. Tampa is also one of only a handful of airports offering non-stop service to Havana, Cuba, as well as charter operations to Holguín and Santa Clara. The Airport hosts more than 22 million passengers per year and is among the top 30 largest Airports in the U.S. for enplanements.

TPA relies on two fixed-base operators on the airport campus and operates three general aviation airports elsewhere in Hillsborough County. The three off-campus airports form a reliever airport network to allow for safe, efficient and timely commercial operations at TPA.

In late 2011, TPA officials began updating the Master Plan for the airport's 3,300-acre campus. The final plan, approved in 2013, outlines three phases of expansion to accommodate 34 million passengers each year, more than double than when the plan first began. It allows a "build as demand dictates" approach to growth with phases based on passenger volume. Completed on time and on budget in 2019, the first phase addressed the immediate need to decongest the curbsides, roads and main terminal. It included a 2.6-million square-foot Rental Car Center, 1.4-mile people mover and an expansion of the main terminal. More than 11,000 people worked on the project, logging more than 6.4 million hours.

Master Plan Phase 1 Fast Facts:

- 2.3-million square foot rental car center
- 1.4-mile SkyConnect Automated People Mover
- 50,000-square-foot expansion of the main terminal
- Added 2,414 spaces to existing Long Term Parking Garage
- Removed 2.7 million cars from airport roads each year
- Cost: $943 million
- Anticipated spending more than $120 million with women-owned, minority-owned and disadvantaged businesses
- Created 9,000 construction-related jobs.

Work on Phase 2 of the Master Plan broke ground in 2019 and includes doubling the capacity of the terminal curbsides, expanding the airport's roadways, and a new headquarters for the Aviation Authority in a new 9-story office building connected to the main terminal by the airport's new SkyConnect automated people mover system.

The Airport recently completed a Project Definition Document for the third phase of its Master Plan which will add a new 16-gate airside to the campus by 2024. Each gate is programmed to be both international and domestic capable.

Tampa is proving its resiliency and ability to thrive, even in the face of the difficult circumstances experienced as a result of COVID-19. The airport's departing passenger numbers are recovering faster than those of the U.S. overall. Many of organization's domestic routes have been reinstated with international routes being restored in the near future. The airport has also announced several new routes. Tampa is a people magnet, ranking #4 in the U.S. for net inflow of residents. Tampa seems to have all the right ingredients to make it a great city to live in after the pandemic: affordability, safety, job market, education and culture. Weather also plays a big role in determining where people want to live year-round, and Tampa does not disappoint.
