The Airports

The Metropolitan Nashville Airport Authority (MNA) was established in 1970 and owns and operates Nashville International Airport®, also known as BNA®, and John C. Tune Airport®, also known as JWN®. A seven-member Board of Commissioners appointed by the Mayor of Nashville establishes policy for the two airports that, according to a recent study, collectively generated more than $8.14 billion in total economic impact, supported more than 76,500 jobs in the region, and produced more than $445 million in state, local, and federal taxes. Middle Tennessee is one of the fastest growing regions in the U.S. and as it continues to grow, so will MNA's role as an economic engine, community leader, and cultural ambassador on behalf of Nashville.

As the region's conduit to travel, Nashville International Airport often serves as the first and last impression of the area for travelers to Music City. With that in mind, BNA strives to bring the city's unique sounds, tastes, and distinctive Southern hospitality to the airport environment and offer a warm and welcoming experience for Nashville visitors. As soon as travelers enter the terminal or step foot off the plane, it's clear that BNA and the MNA team represent the energy and spirit of Nashville.

The Airport Authority employs more than 300 staff members who are dedicated to MNA's vision and mission to create and inspire a team dedicated to providing superior customer service, facilities, and air service in a safe and secure, warm, and welcoming environment that reflects the best of Nashville.

Until the impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic, BNA was one of the fastest growing airports in North America with nearly 18.3 million passengers in 2019 and in 2021 they have seen a rebound in passenger traffic and for the last several months have exceeded 2019 month over month passenger numbers.

The Community

MUSIC & ENTERTAINMENT – Nashville is well known for names like Music Row, the Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum, The Grand Ole Opry, Ryman Auditorium (the “Mother Church of Country Music”), and the recently opened National Museum of African American Music. Of course, while many associate Nashville with country, the “Music City” name echoes a rich heritage spanning numerous genres including pop, rock, bluegrass, Americana, jazz, classical, contemporary Christian, blues, soul, and more.

The Nashville of today is known for its vibrant and diverse entertainment scene. The Tennessee Performing Arts Center is the major performing arts center of the city. It is the home of the Tennessee Repertory Theater, the Nashville Opera, and the Nashville Ballet. The Schermerhorn Symphony Center is the home of the Nashville Symphony.

CULTURE – Nashville earned its “Music City” moniker in the 1950s and has maintained its status as a global center of the entertainment industry ever since. The energy and diversity of our local music scene have been praised in publications such as Travel + Leisure, Nylon, SPIN and Rolling Stone.

Music put Nashville on the map, but it’s not the city’s only claim to fame. Entertainment options include major-league sports teams; an extensive public park and greenway system; museums and art galleries; a professional symphony orchestra; opera, ballet, and theatre companies; and numerous cultural festivals and events. There’s something for everyone to discover.

FOOD & WINE – While Nashville has long been known for its expansive music scene, the talent and creativity of its culinary scene has put Nashville on the map. Food & Wine highlighted the “booming Music City food scene,” Food Arts Magazine noted the “emerging culinary scene putting Nashville on the gastronomic radar,” and, most recently, Condé Nast Traveler stated this about Music City: “There’s enough going on food-wise to warrant a trip solely for eating.” Nashville’s creative spirit has certainly infiltrated its kitchens, turning them into the chef’s studio. From Southern fare to haute cuisine to quite literally everything in between, Nashville’s palate offers it all.

EDUCATION – Nashville and the Middle Tennessee region are home to 25 colleges and universities including Vanderbilt University, Belmont University, Meharry Medical College, and Fisk University, to name a few. By the 1850s, the city was known as the “Athens of the South” for the number of higher education establishments in the area and being the first Southern city in America to establish a public school system.

SPORTS – Nashville has many professional sports teams, most notably the Nashville Predators, Tennessee Titans, Nashville Sounds, and Nashville Soccer Club. Nashville is home to four college Division I athletic programs and is host of the TransPerfect Music City Bowl.

ECONOMY – The greater Nashville region is home to more than 1.9 million people and more than 53,000 businesses. Many corporate headquarter giants call MiddleTennessee home, including Nissan, Bridgestone Americas, Dollar General, HCA, AllianceBernstein, iHeartMedia, Mitsubishi, The ICEE Company, and Amazon. A national hub for the creative class, Nashville has the strongest concentration of the music industry in America.

The Nashville region’s educated workforce not only provides an abundant talent pool for companies, but also bolsters the region’s vibrancy, artistic and musical essence, and competitive edge in technology and innovation. The Nashville region is defined by a diverse economy, low costs of living and doing business, a creative culture, and a well-educated population. Cultural diversity, unique neighborhoods, a variety of industries, and a thriving creative community make MiddleTennessee among the nation’s best locations for relocating, expanding, and startup companies.
